

Preparing to Return to Practice

You may be aware that the UK government is due to make an announcement regarding easing lockdown restrictions on Sunday. We will be in touch again next week when we know how the announcements made will apply to our profession. Whilst we do not yet know when it might be appropriate for aromatherapists and massage therapists to return to work, you might want to start preparing with some free training which has been recommended to us by members: -

Skills for Health are a well-recognised training provider. This free course gives advice, guidance, and information about coronavirus.
